Commuter Services put up signs of the times
New roadside signs promote transit and carpooling

York, Pa. – With gasoline prices at historically high levels, more commuters are seeking information on options for their commute. To help, new signs are being installed along highways in the region promoting 1-866-579-RIDE, the Commuter Services of South Central Pennsylvania toll-free telephone number.

The 52 blue and white signs suggest either “try carpooling” or “try transit.” They are being placed along some of the most congested highways, such as Interstates 83 and 81, and Routes 222, 283, 30, 322, 422, 11 and 15 in York, Lancaster, Cumberland, Dauphin, Perry and Lebanon counties.

The project is being done by Commuter Services in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation (PennDOT) District 8-0.

A poll of regional commuters by Commuter Services in November 2007 showed very strong support for promoting options such as carpools and transit to reduce traffic congestion as well as to help commuters reduce gasoline purchases.

Commuter Services matches carpoolers and vanpoolers through its confidential, online ridematching database (www.PaCommuterServices.org) and, with its transit partners, assists commuters with information on transit services.

Commuter Services also promotes options such as shifts that are outside of normal rush hours, telecommuting, biking, or walking where appropriate. The program includes an aggressive outreach to employers to encourage their participation to help their workforces with options other than driving alone to work.
